

PARDEE'S DATA ON OFFICE OF MAYOR PROVED IN ERROR

Figures Include Entire Item for "Public Affairs," Secretary Weber Points Out.

Dr. George C. Pardee's figures, which would show an increase in the cost of the mayor's office in Oakland include the entire city item for "public affairs," the salary of Ralph Beebe, executive engineer, and other expenses in no way connected with the office of mayor, according to a statement issued today by H. D. Weber, secretary to Mayor Dwyer. Weber repeats his contention that there has been no increase in the number of employees in the mayor's office nor in the expense, and that any fair examination of the figures will bear him out.

The Weber statement follows: "In his vain attempt to show that the mayor's office is costing twice as much this year as last, Dr. Pardee is forced to bring in the budget appropriation for the Department of Public Affairs. He very carefully omits, however, any reference as to what the items in this appropriation are to be used for. The budget item is for the salary of the executive engineer, the position held by Ralph Beebe.

NOT IN MAYOR'S OFFICE. "Beebe is at present engaged with the water rate case and he is before the Railroad Commission November 28, and with public utility work generally. Because of the general nature of this work, his salary is carried under the Department of Public Affairs. Beebe will very probably need assistance in his work, and a sufficient amount has been set apart to provide this assistance if necessary. This will not be in the mayor's office. Beebe is not working in this office, nor is there any likelihood that he will be during the entire fiscal year.

It is amusing to note Dr. Pardee's reference to the expenditure in the mayor's office during the Mott administration. Why does he not refer to the expenditures when he himself was mayor over twenty-five years ago? The city has grown very rapidly in the past few years, and there has been a natural increase in all municipal expenses, just as has occurred in any growing business.

"I stated two years ago the appropriation for the office was so low as to necessitate letting off a stenographer and taking the mayor's car out of service for several months. No doubt in his wisdom Dr. Pardee considers this as proper for a city the size of Oakland.

"The mayor's office today has the same number of employees as six years ago—the secretary to the mayor, a stenographer and the mayor's chauffeur. The office is not costing any more than it has for several years past, although additional help is badly needed."

Plans to Slip Through An
Indorsement Proves to

With this statement explaining the movement up to the time of the election of the Freeholders, it is not to be expected that we must believe that these various municipal interests were in good faith? Then, who is to be the judge whether Berkeley, Alameda, the outside will keep that faith? There can be no judgment passed until after November 15.

"If it should be that some of those who should have kept the faith in their devotion to the cause of Consolidation, it is then plumb up to those who are true to the trust reposed in them by the citizenry of Alameda county to 'carry over' and if it should be that unanimous support be not given to Consolidation, then those districts which have kept the faith should be given the privilege of a Consolidated City and County government and the greater efficiency that comes from the fixing of responsibility and the co-ordination of all the functions of government in Alameda county."

ARMS SPLIT ON U. S. AND BRITISH OIL HOPES SEEN

Conflict of Interests Upon Petroleum Questions Are Feared by Times.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—One danger to a final satisfactory agreement at the approaching Washington conference lies in the present conflict of British and American interests in oil questions, says a lengthy article in the London Times.

"It may fairly be advanced," says the article, "if Great Britain is not prepared to make concessions on this vital question the conference is likely to break down."

The writer advocates abandonment by the British government of their present policy of participation in oil production and supply, and announces its control of the Anglo-Persian Oil company and produces evidence of its complete dissolution from active participation in the oil industry. It can justly demand, whether in Calcutta or the Philippines, continuance of America's old and sound policy of 'the open door.' It is the world's policy that will make for the world's peace.

PROBLEM IS PARAMOUNT. "Granted the conference has a better chance for success with a limited, definite agenda, it is yet necessary that the public, as well as the representatives of this country in Washington, should fully realize that, while limitation of naval armaments must hold first place in the agenda, that question cannot be satisfactorily settled without a complete understanding between America and Great Britain on the international aspect of oil production and supply.

"It cannot be denied that in the operations of certain oil companies there is the factor of British government control. That is the real cause of the bad feeling that exists between America and Great Britain on the oil question, and that is why the anxiety of the British to have the security of oil supplies for the British fleet in time of war, which at once is reasonable and genuine, has come into conflict with the equally reasonable and genuine anxiety of the American oil men as to the future profits and prospects in the oil business in time of peace.

POSITION CALLED FALSE. "We know that Great Britain does not, in fact, dominate the oil situation, and does not as an empire hold ideas of oil aggrandizement, yet the operations of the Anglo-Persian Oil company and the Shell-Royal Dutch group, which are under British government participation, and where these commercial concerns have pushed their activities forward in competition with the Standard Oil company, the hundred per cent American, seem signs of British 'narcissism' for a future naval war."

"The axiom, so generally accepted, that oil supplies are the ultimate basis of naval efficiency," adding that oil power depends upon sea power for every big nation except America," which is in the unique position of being, if not potentially, self-supporting in oil. It asserts the industrial and commercial control of oil fields without war time military or naval command is futile because of the necessity of transportation. It declares sound commercial and economic reasons justify a change in the British policy because of expense involved.

Held in Check Case

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—J. Harold Hedley, 20, of the firm of Hedley & Olson, fruit shippers of Fresno, was arrested here last night just as he was entering a theater to join a girl companion. Other checks for sums aggregating nearly $1000 are said to have been passed on the same hotel. Taxicab companies and merchants were also victimized by the youth, it is said.

Labor conditions and threatened business failure brought about his plight, according to the story Hedley told to Police Detectives Griff Benady and Thomas Reagan and Detective Nick Harris. He ran out of ready cash, he said, and passed the worthless paper, hoping to be able to repurchase his losses before the checks went through the clearing house and reached Fresno. He will be held for further investigation.

Old Oakland and Oakland's Oldest Bank

IN the year 1867, when The Oakland Bank of Savings was established, there were few indications of the city's industrial future, as the following excerpt from an article published in 1868 will illustrate:

"Industrially Oakland has two grist mills, to grind into flour the wheat crop of the country; two planing mills, supplying the materials for the numerous buildings continually being erected; two tanneries and one pottery, to say nothing of the cotton mills, employing 40 hands daily. Oakland is certain to be a city of great prosperity and importance in spite of any agency under human control which could be directed against it."

While there is a Cotton Mills mentioned in the article printed opposite, it had no connection with the present corporation, which was established in 1883 and built the above plant the following year. This was one of the first real advances in Oakland's industrial life, and the company has grown tremendously since this picture was made.

From eight plants, with approximately 100 employees, to our present total of 600 industries, furnishing employment for over 25,000 people, in a little over 50 years is a record of which the city may well be proud; but even this growth is exceeded by the increase in deposits of The Oakland Bank of Savings which at the close of their first year's business were $279,000 and in 1921 have reached a total of over $43,000,000.

SCHOOL ACRES
DEEDED 1888,
BASIS FOR SUIT

Abandonment for School Purposes Urged As Claim by Assignee of Pioneer.

SAN JOSE, Nov. 5.—A case involving school property in the southern part of Santa Clara county and a deed made out 58 years ago, in 1863, by William Z. Angrey, was thrown into the superior court here today when Tracy Learnard, one of the prominent growers and land holders of the southern end of the Santa Clara valley, filed suit against the trustees of the Live Oak school district, asking that title to two acres of valuable land be quieted.

The case, it was stated to THE TRIBUNE this morning, is one of unusual significance, being but one of a number that are now pending not only here but in other parts of California, and which are being cited in law that has been extensively disputed.

Angrey, a pioneer long since dead, decided over the two acres of land in question, the deed being made out to the trustees of the Live Oak school district. It is alleged in the complaint that the deed was made out to the trustees of the Live Oak school district, and that the deed was made out to the trustees of the Live Oak school district, and that the deed was made out to the trustees of the Live Oak school district.

Hayward to Be First to Endorse Alameda's Base

HAYWARD, Nov. 5.—As the result of action taken at a meeting of the Hayward Chamber of Commerce today, the endorsement of the Alameda Naval Base program is the first to be made by a local organization.

This co-operative effort of all chambers of commerce and commercial institutions in the bay district has been sought by the executive committee in charge of the Alameda Naval Base program. J. B. Parsons and M. J. Madison, members of the Hayward chamber and also members of the executive committee, were present at the meeting of the progress of the executive committee which met in San Francisco yesterday afternoon.

A unanimous vote favoring the Alameda Naval Base at Alameda, reported to the executive committee, was the result of the meeting. The committee will be further discussed at the next meeting of the committee, which will be held in San Francisco on December 2.

Madison, would be a station for general repair and supply only. Vallejo, one of the strongest opponents of the Alameda site, would be opposed very little by the change, he stated. He further stated that the site in Alameda was discovered and chosen by the Helms commission and that no personal profit was to be gained by any community in favoring their choice.

The Alameda site offered the government and favorably considered by two commissions of high authority from Washington, comprises 6000 acres and is valued at $50,000,000. The appropriation for the site, budget that would cover the expense of placing a naval base on this site must be made at the coming session of Congress. The opposition to this appropriation has come from the Alameda district, solely, and has been enough to throw the whole matter in dispute, states Parsons.

CHINA CEASURES JAPAN'S INTENTION AS TO SHANTUNG

Tokyo Promises Much, But Fails to Redeem Pledges, Note Asserts.

PEKING, Nov. 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—In a 2000-word note to the Japanese government, the Chinese government has declared its attitude toward the latest proposals of the Japanese government concerning the Shantung situation. It states that the Japanese proposals are not acceptable.

The Japanese memorandum to China of October 19, the note declares, shows an apparent misunderstanding and misinterpretation of the text of the Chinese note of October 5, thereby necessitating further statement by the Chinese government, covering past facts and an unchanged viewpoint on the part of China.

The summary of the Japanese government's proposed basis of settlement, the memorandum continues, "is altogether too remote from the hopes and expectations of the Chinese government and people, who therefore are obliged to await patiently an opportunity suitable to Japan for a reconsideration of her position."

CHINA DENIES CHARGES. "It is most regrettable that the Japanese government has given no sign of concessions, while insisting that China openly is unwilling to proceed with negotiations."

China was unable to sign the Versailles treaty, owing to the Shantung articles, hence it is impossible to compel her to recognize the effects arising from the treaty regarding Shantung.

Regarding the German declaration concerning Shantung, China, when the Chinese-German commercial agreement was negotiated, insisted on her demand for the restoration of Kiaochow, but Germany could only regret to China that Germany's power for returning Kiaochow had been lost through a force majeure, which explanation China simply acknowledged. Hence, it is a serious misunderstanding for Japan to construe this incident as meaning China's recognition of the Versailles treaty.

"OCCUPATION INTENSIFIED." "Further, the right of policing was exclusively China's, and absolutely no military necessity justified Japanese occupation."

The Chinese memorandum of October 5 properly came into the line of right to control the railway, to divide the entire capital and property into two halves, stating that China must redeem the Japanese half within a fixed period. This arrangement being most fair and just, the Japanese statement that China's proposal is devoid of meaning is regrettable. It is to be inferred that the Japanese government is of the opinion that the railway's capital and property have been awarded by the reparations committee to Japan to satisfy Germany's indemnity, but China, not having signed the treaty, that commission has not the right to the authority to dispose of property within Chinese territory to satisfy Germany's indemnity obligations. Furthermore, since China's participation in the war, Germany is indebted to China, and, if the railway is to be used to satisfy indemnity obligations, it is evident that it should be reimbursed first."

Among the events following the

WOMAN DEFIES SUMMONS AS AUTO SPEEDER

SAN LEANDRO, Nov. 5.—Mrs. L. R. Lurie, 220 Montgomery street, San Francisco, today is charged with speeding, and incidentally with her arrest. Traffic Officer Joseph Brandon, of San Leandro, would be pleased to know why his victims are accompanied by alleged traffic officers.

Mrs. Lurie was traveling through heavy traffic in San Leandro yesterday evening at thirty-eight miles an hour, the officer charges. When he arrested her she remonstrated and declared she would not appear in court November 14.

A companion, who refused to give his name, said he was a traffic officer of Chelmsford, O., and that Brandon would be sent to jail.

Two weeks ago Brandon arrested D. Shaw, of Hollister, on a similar charge. Shaw was accompanied by an alleged traffic officer of San Jose, who advised Brandon not to sign the appearance blank given him by Brandon.

So far Shaw has not been in court and Brandon is wondering whether the law motorist arrested last night will cause similar trouble at the advice of her traffic officer escort.

MOTOR PATROL TO FIGHT CRIME WAVE INCREASE

SAN JOSE, Nov. 5.—Steps looking toward more competent protection for the residential districts of San Jose by the local police department were taken today by Chief of Police J. N. Black, following the series of hold-ups during the past ten days, in which two men have been shot, others fired upon and a dozen robbed.

The chief announced this morning the re-establishment of Office Lloyd Buffington as a motor patrol officer, thus dividing the residential anti-crime work in half.

Officer Edward Wolford was assigned at the same time to accompany Buffington, thus materially increasing the efficiency of the residential protection.

The action of reinstating the second automobile officer came following a conference between Chief Manager C. B. Goodin and Chief Black. It was deemed imperative, the officials agreed, that immediate steps must be taken to check the crime wave which has resulted in 13 robberies, 10 hold-ups and 10 burglaries.

Antonio Dolli and Joseph Lodore (the two men shot by armed, masked bandits who hold up a pool hall at 673 Orchard street Thursday night, were reported as being in an improved condition. Their wounds are not serious, physicians stated.

Police had believed that the arrest last Monday of Manuel Freitas and Frank Furtado, Santa Clara youth, who had turned hold-up and opened fire on ranchers and officers, had brought to justice the youths responsible for the series of crimes, but Thursday night's shooting and hold-up has again brought forth the contention that the daring hold-up men have not been nabbed.

The description of the men who held up the Orchard street pool hall corresponds more completely with the descriptions of the men who have been operating on a wholesale scale than do the descriptions of Freitas and Furtado.

Yolo County Is Free From Disease Spread

WOODLAND, Nov. 5.—Although an epidemic of diptheria is sweeping the State, local doctors claim for Yolo that it is possibly the only county in the State where there is no sign of the disease and little other sickness. NOSE OF SCHOOL HEAD BROKEN IN FIGHT WITH BOY

Principal Hudspeth Says He Will Ask Arrest of Youth Who Inflicted Injury.

Following a fight between C. E. Hudspeth, principal of the Washington school, and George Hitchcock, student at his school, and son of Cecil Hitchcock, principal of the Hitchcock school, in which Hudspeth suffered a broken nose, Hudspeth today announced that he would seek a warrant for the arrest of young Hitchcock. This threat was met by one from the father of the boy involved that he would also seek a warrant for the arrest of Hudspeth, charging him with assault and battery. At a late hour today neither party had secured a warrant.

The fight occurred late yesterday in the school principal's office, according to Hudspeth's statement to the police, after he had received treatment at the Temple hospital in Berkeley for a broken nose, six unidentifiable boys and young Hitchcock, were sent to him by one of the teachers for disciplinary measures. He said that young Hitchcock attempted to leave the room and that when he tried to do so, he struck him a blow in the face, resulting in a broken nose.

According to Hitchcock, the boy's father, he questioned his son and summoned the other boys who were present. He asserts that Hudspeth summoned the boys before him and then announced that he would soundly whup young Hitchcock in the presence of the other boys. Hitchcock then alleges that Hudspeth called the physical instructor at the school and was preparing to beat the boy when young Hitchcock struck the principal in self defense. He also alleges that the broken nose resulted when Hudspeth lunged against the wall after young Hitchcock had evaded him as he rushed at the boy.

He also said that the fall thousands of tons short of early season estimates. Springer says that the quality of beets has been unusually high.

A full crew of men has been working steadily at the mill for the past two months, 225 being at work at the mill proper, and fifty more working at outside stations.

Women of Niles to Give Park Benefits

NILES, Nov. 5.—The Women's Civic League of Niles, recently organized, will give a dance this evening at Conner's hall.

The club is planning a number of entertainments to be given through the winter for the purpose of planting and maintaining a park on the north side of Main street, which will be about 20 feet wide and 300 or more feet long. The use of this strip of country will be under the supervision of the county and will be under the supervision of the late Supervisor Daniel Murphy.

The Southern Pacific will assist in the necessary "fill" and in securing the strip.

The park is really a part of the Soldiers' Memorial Day plans and the guns now on the school grounds, with a suitable flag and pole, are to be placed in the lawn.

The ladies expect to secure the use of the hall above the fire house, which they will sit up as a club house for the use of several organizations, as well as for their club meetings and have many ambitious plans which, with the aid of the American Legion and the Chamber of Commerce, they expect to see accomplished before spring.

"Father, Son Banquet" Planned by Y. M. C. A.

MARTINEZ, Nov. 5.—Announcement was made today by Rev. N. F. Sanderson of the Congregational church, that the annual "Father and Son Banquet" of the Y. M. C. A. will be held at the Elks hall next Tuesday evening.

The first "father and son banquet" was held last year and was such a success that a decision was reached to make it an annual event.

"Bring a boy—if not your own son, then a neighbor's boy and we will make him a member of the Y. M. C. A.," was the slogan for the banquet.

Ralph B. Larkin of Berkeley, who has wide experience in work among boys, will be the principal speaker of the evening. Short addresses will also be made by several boys and a short musical program will be given.

Girls of the Congregational Christian Endeavor Society are arranging the banquet and have promised a real harvest spread.

Only in Sunday's Edition of Oakland Tribune Will These Features Appear

William Bird, the Sunday TRIBUNE'S Paris correspondent, on a trip to Berlin, finds that the German mark has dropped to a value of less than one-half the American cent and tourists from the United States are having a shopping spree. Clothing and food can be obtained at a astonishingly low figures, while French wines in Berlin cost less than one-third the price in Paris, a glass of fine brandy retails at 9 cents. Berlin is upset in other ways, too. Waiters have struck against the tipping system.

American women are not alone in their revolt against the deuce of Paris that skirts shall be "ankle-deep." They have strong allies in those little midnights in the French capital—the women who actually make the gowns. They are still waiting their short and say they are not ashamed of what the public sees. Grant Gordon, Sunday TRIBUNE correspondent, cabling from Paris agrees with them.

The cry of distress from Bolshevik Russia which now offers to pay its debts, seems to Maximilian Harden, German publicist, to force the Russian problem into the Washington conference. He believes it might need President Harding a great opportunity to start something for the world by reconstructing Russia.

England now more places hope for a settlement of the Irish problem in Ulster which is to be asked to give up two counties to Sinn Féin domination, says George N. Barnes, member of parliament. The next few days should tell the story of success or failure of the Irish negotiations. Lloyd George, he says, is weary and not imbued with any great amount of hope.

As the delegations to the arms conference hasten to Washington, Europe is experiencing a shock which Andre Tardieu, French statesman, thinks will help to emphasize the need for an understanding of what goes on in every corner of Europe before the American conference can prove useful. Tardieu is skeptical about Russia's offer to pay the czar's debts.

Ralph Burton in a despatch from Washington, tells of the effort of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor, to collect material about the women who are ordinarily have responsibilities equal to those of men and that they should not be discriminated against in the matter of wages.

The outstanding figure at the Washington conference will be President Harding, says Robert T. Small. Foreign nations tied up with alliances will look to the United States, which insists upon

KNOTTY TANGLE PUZZLES JUDGE IN I. W. W. CASE

"Can a man be guilty of what is not a crime?" is the remarkable question that confronts Superior Judge George Samuels in reaching a decision whether to grant a new trial to Michael Dunn, Patrick Casey, John McLaughlin, John Hannon, George Ryan and Howard Welton. So puzzling the problem that Judge Samuels today asked for further time to consider it.

The six defendants charged with the violations of the California criminal syndicalism statute, were found guilty of the first four counts by a jury which held them guilty of the fifth count, 31 counts in all.

This is the action of the jury which was in charge of the afternoon program. In the first count of the indictment they were charged with belonging to a revolutionary organization. The men, in open court, admitted membership in the organization. In question, the International Workers of the World. The jury found them not guilty, which in effect declared the I. W. W. not to be a revolutionary organization.

WATSON CHARGES ARE SCORED BY WAR SECRETARY

No Decent Man Would Make Such Accusations, Declares Weeks.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE. LEARNED WIFE TO TRIBUNE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Secretary of War Weeks today declared that he is confident that all of the charges made against the army senator Watson of Georgia would be disproved.

Referring to statements alleged to have been made by Senator Watson reflecting upon army nurses, the secretary said:

"No decent man would make charges against a class of people. I measure my words when I say that."

An affidavit charging that bodies of four negro soldiers found with ropes tied around their necks when they were dug up in cemetery in France, will be presented Monday before the special Senate committee. Senator Watson announced today.

"The affidavit is only part of mass of evidence in my possession and which I will present," said Senator Watson on the case of four men, my evidence tends to show that they were hanged without trial and that an effort was made to cover up."

"I have evidence that is categorical and unequivocal in disclosing, stances, officers and places connected with outrages against American diera."

The most startling is that concerning the four bodies. The one who gave it returned from Europe two weeks ago and is now in Washington. In France he was engaged in the preparation of the bodies for shipment to the States. "The bodies were dug up in cemetery at Bazailles and then still a scaffold on the hill near large enough to hang three soldiers at a time, my witness tells me."

"Although the bodies of all diera, even in cases where they been executed, were identified records placed in a bottle with coffee, the bodies were not identified. These four cases, and the evidence indicated irregular and hasty burial in the country."

ALAMEDA CREEK COMPLAINT FILE

The maze of litigation which grown around the question of right of the Spring Valley Company to divert the waters of Alameda Creek was further tangled today by the filing of a new complaint against the water company by the Alameda County District, setting forth the grievance of owners of 44,000 acres of the fertile land in the county.

The owners of this land in complaint declare they are still suffering from the company's action in diverting the waters of the creek to its reservoirs, declaring that it is thereby the district for irrigation, domestic and sanitary purposes. The two dams, at Sunol and at the El Estero, have been built to divert the water in the creek below the dam which will tap the water under the creek have greatly reduced their flow, to a point where it is almost impossible to grow crops. The complaint asks an injunction to compel the water company to remove the dams, on Alameda creek and its tributaries, and to pay such damages as the plaintiffs may suffer.

Three years ago the same matter slightly different form, was taken for the State Water Commission arbitration, but the Alameda County District refused to accept the commission's findings, holding that certain matters the commission exceeded its jurisdiction.

Among the plaintiffs in this suit are S. P. Brown, F. H. man, G. P. Lavine, A. W. Haley, Brown, S. E. Steifers, F. B. Gra, Antone, C. Garcia, Charles B. Scher, H. P. Bracher, Fred W. B. H. F. Weston, E. S. Harvey, F. Harvey, August Marx, John G. A. A. Oliver, F. F. Dusterbier.

WOMAN AVOIDS AN OPERATION

Hope Nearly Gone, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her

Star, N. C.—"My monthly spells gave me so much trouble, sometimes they would last two weeks I was treated by two doctors without relief and they both said I would have to have an operation. I had my trouble four years and was unfit to do anything and had given up all hope of ever getting any better. I read about your medicine in the 'Primitive Baptist' paper and decided to try it. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for about seven months and now I am able to do my work. I shall never forget your medicine and you may publish this if you want to as it is true."—Mrs. J. F. Hunsley, Star, N. C.

Here is another woman who adds her testimony to the many whose letters we have already published, proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound often restores health to suffering women even after they have gone so far that an operation is deemed advisable. Therefore it will surely pay any woman who suffers from such ailments to try it.

Fathers to Be Guests Of Women

By EDNA B. KINARD

Father is being exploited these days but mother does not seem to fear that he is in a way to be spoiled. She is busy making him comfortable and seeing that he is well fed in a most charming and diplomatic way. Later she is promising herself that she will take full toll for her trouble in the interest, which she knows is due to be aroused in him on behalf of child welfare expressed in a most practical way through membership in the parent teacher association.

Here comes Washington mothers' association a cafeteria dinner for Tuesday night with fathers the honor to it that their husbands' persons mothers plunging into debt and planning a father's night all in the same breath. And what a father going to do? He is going to have a good time, realize the children are his job as much as mothers and in all probability put his shoulder to the wheel and make things easier at the club.

Small children at a grown-up party are as unhappy as the guests. Washington School mothers are joining to it that their husbands' joy next week is not diminished by baby hands. A corps of volunteer entertainers of children have promised to keep the youngsters under 7 years separate and amused as the first condition of a well-ordered evening.

Supper over an entertainment and moving picture show in the auditorium will be followed by a dance. Reservations may be obtained for the supper from Mrs. V. D. D. The November luncheon L. eliminated by the evening program.

Jefferson mothers this month purchased a $500 piano to be presented to the school. They made an initial payment of $225. But the students are the children of other mothers and fathers, so an invitation is being extended to them to join in wiping out the debt. Within a fortnight fathers will receive pressing invitation to spend the evening with mother when he will be told some interesting things.

A siren song is being sung in the purpose of Jefferson School mothers. The first was presented recently as a reward to the class which recruited the largest number of pupils to the association. Miss Brandenberg's room took the flag with the honors. Fifteen names were enrolled from the class in the month's membership campaign. The association meets on the first and third Thursdays.

Sites for the clubhouse, which Hill and Valley Club is planning to erect in Hayward, will be presented on Monday before the members and a straw ballot taken on their desirability.

James H. MacLafferty will be the speaker at the 3 o'clock program, delivering an address on "American citizenship."

Alken, will inaugurate the hour's program. A short talk on the benefits of parliamentary law study will be given by Mrs. Eugene K. Sturgis. Solo numbers will be rendered by Mrs. Alken and Mrs. D. C. Starkweather.

A business session will precede the program. Plans for the Country Fair, which will be given in the Municipal Auditorium next month under the auspices of Oakland Federation of Mothers' Clubs, will be discussed.

"Oh—well—But then there's the hymns. You both gotta drill down to the Municipal building to get that, and the bureau closes, I reckon, at 5."

Bob glanced at his wrist watch. "We can make it, I imagine—it we take this subway. Then we can come back to the—I reckon the Little Church Around the Corner is the best place. Could you telephone the minister?"

"That had better do that," Joe said. She nodded.

"I'll have to finish packing and pay the hotel bill, and then I could come back. I'll have to rush."

Bob lowered his voice as he spoke to Joe.

"One thing more, please. Since I am marrying your sister, I'd like to know the circumstances—especially not my mother—Oh, Lord! I've got to tell her."

"You can write it to her," Kate said.

"But she's coming here any minute."

Kate had tact enough not to attempt to feel that he would prefer to be left alone with his shame.

She and Joe had hardly left the room when there was a knock at the door.

Bob's mother came in, smiling and quietly.

Mrs. Baxter gathered her boy to her bosom again and kissed him with a fervent gratitude that he was still alive.

"Well, honey, here I am. Who were your friends I saw just leaving you? Ratha pretty girl."

"Do you really think so, mother?"

Bob demanded. "She's a pretty girl."

"She's qualified her praise a whit. A little too pretty, perhaps. Who is she?"

Before Bob could launch upon the dolorous sea of explanations Zeb came into the room. Mrs. Zeb demanded the lost black sheep to the fold again.

"This is Zeb, I suppose. And how does it seem to be back with us and working for my son?"

Zeb rolled his eyes. "Oh, Lawdy! It's jes' the worst! I'm a granddaddy only now. Oh, Miss Lee, you jes' in time to save him."

"Why, what's up now?"

"Them two Yah—"

But Bob broke in with a sharp, "I'll tell it."

He was frantic enough to be in subordinate. He appealed to the bewildered mother. "He won't tell it like I will!"

"Leave the room!" Bob commanded.

"You lea me tell it!" Zeb protested, like a frightened child.

"Pardon me a moment, mother," Bob said, with a grim gentleness. Then he led Zeb by the arm into the next room and closed the door.

He spoke to him as to a forward youngster. "Now, look here, Zeb, I'm an old man to you, but I can turn you off. And I will unless you obey me in everything and obey me in silence. And lay out my black morning coat and my silk hat and patent leather shoes, for I'm going to be married before I see you."

"Oh, Ma! Bob, for the love of—"

Bob gave him one look and he changed his tune to: "I'm silent. I ain't sayin' a word."

"Get my trunk packed and send it to the Pennsylvania—not to the Grand Central—at once! Understand?"

Zeb had neglected also to tell Bob this news.

She was vexed at his stupid astonishment and she said, "I told you I was going to ask them to meet me here and you said 'All right!'"

Bob nodded and pressed his hand against his aching head.

As he stood peered for stumped, there was a rat-tat of knuckles on the door. His mother waited a moment and then called out:

"Come in!"

And in came April's mother, and April, and after them, Pansy. All three ran to Mrs. Taxter and lavished upon her an attention of many years' ripening.

Bob was tempted to dart round them into the hall and away. But April held him fast.

She had changed her gown again this time to conquer him with. And she succeeded.

April came forward shyly. She gave him a warm clasp of her lovely hand and with an amiable mockery of humility:

"I've come to ask you for that property of mine you carried off—that ring you stole."

It went through Bob like a knife that she was asking to be restored. While he groped for words, he heard Pansy chattering to Mrs. Taxter.

"Lawd bless you, Miss Lee, you ain't one day olda than what you was. I 'clare you and my Miss May's got hate no peace twell we gits them two married off an' outen the way."

"I reckon you're right, Pansy," Mrs. Taxter sighed. "I felt it in my bones, and that's why I brought this old Taxta necklace up, hoping I could get rid of it. April, you put this thing on and see how it fits you. It belongs round the throat of the next Taxta bride."

April's eyes were averted, and she was looking at her finger. She drew the emblem of the marriage, that was too beautiful to be, woke him to the necessity for confession.

He spoke up huskily: "Wait a moment, mother, please. I've got something to say first." He saw Pansy eyeing him. He said: "Oh, Pansy, you'll find your old friend Zeb in the next room. He's hard at work. You might help him."

April thought to hearten Bob with a fuller confession. She drew him aside from the others and whispered: "Bob, I want to apologize for my wretched temper this morning. I didn't like that Yarmy woman one bit, and I couldn't endure the thought of your liking her. If you can forgive me—"

Bob took it from his pocket and tossed it in his restless hands, as if he were tossing a drop of glistening rain.

"Oh, April, April, why didn't you keep it on! Then they could have killed me before I would have—"

"Killed you?" April cried. "You don't mean that something has happened to prevent my getting the ring back?"

"Yes, it's too late."

"I don't know how I can explain it without being a worse cad than I am now, but—"

"Perhaps you'd better not explain it at all," said April, with an icy dread. "And perhaps it's as bad as you think, but I can't imagine you just being a cad, Bob. Probably you just imagine it's worse than it is."

"No, it's as bad as it can be, and there's no way out of it."

Despair in the mother of bravery, and April smiled as she caught him by the hand and closed them upon the dancing ring and murmured:

"Then we'll both have to be as plucky about it as we can."

Mrs. Summerlin called out merrily:

"Now, Bob, you promised to tell us something terribly exciting. What is it?"

Bob released his hands from April's, put away the tantalizing ring, glanced at the clock to see how late he was.

Bob's heart rapped his breast in the same rhythm. He was sure it was Kate come to claim him and to drag him from his family with a parody of the classic bridal battle.

He went to the door. And now Kate Yarmy blew in breezily.

"Oh, Bob!"

Bob said: "Miss Yarmy, let me present you to my mother. You know her, Summerlin and Miss Summerlin."

Kate ignored them and turned to Mrs. Taxter. She stammered:

"I—I—as we say in Texas, I admire to meet you. But I'm afraid you won't like me."

Mrs. Taxter tried to be polite at least. "Anybody that my boy is so fond of must be—"

"Isn't it strange?" Kate broke in, nervously. "Who could believe it? It's brother Zeb! Bob—Joe told me that we had to rush back home on the first train, and Bob, the dear boy, just insisted on havin' the wedding at once, so's he could go along. Didn't you, Bob?"

"Yes, Miss—yes, dear."

Bob took to his heels with a feeble excuse: "I—I haven't begun to pack yet. If you'll all excuse me a few minutes—"

He dashed into the bedroom, then into the bathroom, which was the only dressing room he had left.

But what gave Kate most unexpected courage was the sight of the Taxter necklace lying on the table.

With a husband, an honorable name and a diamond necklace as her quarry, Kate was ready to match wits or fangs and claws with any earthly power.

Each time he would have before Kate might return, and began with another beginning.

"Mother, you've often told me that you ran off and got married" (pronounced like a drawled-out "mad").

Bob Taxter confessed the outlawed crime. "Yes, my boy—it was a runaway match and it's happy. Why do you ask?"

"Because I wanted to see if you believed in runaway matches."

"Well, I can't say I do. Ouh, cas—"

"Well, so is mine," said Bob. "I'm going to run away, too."

Miss Taxter leaped to her feet. April clenched her every muscle like the hand of one who is utterly startled.

Bob pressed his mother back to her chair and sat upon the arm of it, embracing her.

"You remember the girl who left here just as you came?"

"Yes, Yarmy. April, you know. She's Yarmy. I know you don't."

"Bob! You don't mean it! You know you don't!"

Bob said, sternly, to protect his weakness. Should I marry her if I didn't?"

Miss Taxter cried: "Of course you would. You'd marry anybody who made a claim on your generosity. But I won't permit it. She shan't have you!"

Bob could only groan for mercy now. "Mother, I beg you!"

The anguish in his tone dragged her resistance.

Mrs. Summerlin faltered.

"Why, Bob, always thought you and April—"

April would not play the beggar. She forced herself to be gentle and cheerful and matter-of-fact.

"No, mother, that's all over and done with. Bob and I are awfully fond of each other, but we quarrel too easily, so we decided just to get good friends."

Bob's mother hastened to pretend to indignation:

"When did this extraordinary information come to you, Bob?"

"Very recently. It was a case of—"

Mrs. Taxter spoke the loathsome words for him, "Love at first sight."

Bob nodded. Mrs. Taxter asked: "Isn't it going to be a case of malice at first sight, too, is it?"

"They're telephoning the minister now, she and her brother."

Bob spoke with a deadly wrath at circumstances and all its victims.

"My bride is leaving for Texas tonight—immediately after our wedding—and I am going with her on the first train."

This reduced his mother to frantic appeal:

"Bob, honey, my sweet boy, my darling child, you couldn't leave your poor old mother like this. After all, she's never loved you more than she does now. You wouldn't, would you, honey? Say you wouldn't treat me so!"

Bob pleaded:

"Mother, you're killing me. I've got to go. I'll come back soon. Don't make it any harder for me. Don't!"

This cry checked her again. She turned her eyes to April.

April went forward into the room where she had vainly tried to go during the war, to bind up wounds and distill courage from a heart full of terror:

"Now, Mrs. Taxter, you know it was to come. You know that the mothers are never satisfied with the wives their sons select."

"Oh, if Bob had chosen you—"

"It's all gone to come out all right. Bob knows best. He'll bring home a girl this way to see you, you expected. Miss Yarmy is a very handsome—"

Mrs. Taxter was weeping wholeheartedly now, but about his going away so far and so soon.

Bob's heart rapped his breast in the same rhythm. He was sure it was Kate come to claim him and to drag him from his family with a parody of the classic bridal battle.

He went to the door. And now Kate Yarmy blew in breezily.

"Oh, Bob!"

Bob said: "Miss Yarmy, let me present you to my mother. You know her, Summerlin and Miss Summerlin."

Cry on Geraldine's Shoulder

Listen, World

There's a fearful to-do in the Wentworth and Truxton homes and the engagement between Eleanor Wentworth and Dick Truxton is off. It came about this way. As you know, the Wentworths and Truxtons have all the cream in these parts—the rest of us share the buttermilk as it were. So when Eleanor and Dick became engaged it was some solemn celebration. Of course they decided that Dick must make a pre-nuptial financial settlement upon Eleanor so that she should never have to face the horrid embarrassment of asking her husband for money. That's the way they're doing things now.

But Dick has a queer mind. Says he—"All right, I'll make the settlement but I consider it a gamble. I'm fond of Eleanor but if you're going to put this thing on a business basis, I'm forced to realize that Eleanor may or may not be a good investment. How can I tell? Therefore, I'm going to try to protect that money. If she's to be saved from post-nuptial malnutrition, I must make a settlement upon her but she must sign a contract for me. She must promise to play fair, be considerate, sympathetic, prompt, industrious, economical."

But Dick didn't finish his inventory for right then the party broke up. The very idea of making Eleanor sign a contract! Had he no sentiment, no chivalry, no work she sits down and cries that he is "getting tired of her!" WHICH HE PROBABLY IS! WHO WOULDN'T GET TIRED OF HER! I talk about the duty of men. ALL RIGHT—WOMEN'S DUTY WHEN HE FINDS HE HAS MARRIED A FOOL!

WHAT'S A MAN'S DUTY WHEN HE FINDS HE HAS MARRIED A WHIMPERER? A SACKER A BUNCH OF CURS AND COMPLEXION COVERING A VACUUM? No one holds higher standards for humanity than I do.

No one respects the married covenant more than I do. But for the love Mike, let's make the standards go double. Let's look at things as they really are. Instead of imagining movie plots for "em" there are no more movie plots than there are women scoundrels. My heart aches for the woman who, in the ignorance of youth and the delirium of mating, marries a worthless cur, and then finds her true mate when it's too late.

My heart aches for the man who, under the same circumstances, marries a parasite and a senseless ninny, and then finds the true wife of his heart when he may not claim her. Do I believe that the blessed love can be honorable and lasting?

I most certainly do! And when the letters which come to me indicate just that state of affairs, I am going to give my frank opinion and let the Ku-Klux-Klan view point in the world are not going to stop me!

An Abused Wife
And when she reads my answer to this she'll call me a "horrid thing" and love him all the more. I'll betcha!

Dear Geraldine:
Well, dear, I don't know how to begin as I am weary and brokenhearted. I have been married for ten years and haven't any children (thank God).

My husband seems impossible to please. I have worked ever since we were married and tried to save as much as possible. I pay for all my own clothes and my husband complains and says I spend too much.

We were married five weeks when my husband became intoxicated and threw me out bodily. I went home to my mother and he followed the next day begging for another chance. I went back to him but after a week he again became abusive. I stood all this as he got drunk and paid the bills during his illness but even this did not please him. I left my position and went with him to the country and worked in a factory just to help him.

Well, Geraldine, he still abuses me, and why. I am sure that I cannot tell. When in his own parents' house he struck me and they took my part and ordered him out. After we were in the country for a while he began to drink again and abused me continually.

One night he became more abusive than usual and beat me. I had to go for help and soon notified my mother who immediately took me to her home.

Geraldine, I broke my mother's heart by allowing this man to abuse me, as I am her only child. I want to make good and somehow he doesn't do it.

I have done my best and somehow my marriage seems to be a failure. I am very meek in disposition and very seldom quarrel unless I am alone. I married at the age of 16 and am now 21 years old. My husband is 25, going on 26. If you were in my place, tell me what you would do.

BROKENHEARTED.

Provided I wasn't big enough to beat him up myself, I'd call a cop and then I'd take the first train to the nearest job. That's what I would do.

STRIPED BOX—You're talking nonsense to Jerry, and you know it. He's a perfect idiot, a perpetual optimist—he would make me weep—but also these "nobody loves me" kind give me a pain. If you can't see how silly it all is, I can't help you. Snap out of it before you get yourself really delirious.

Geraldine

THAT PRE-NUPRIAL CONTRACT

appreciation of the honor she was doing by marrying him. Whereupon Dick brazenly responded that he didn't see that Eleanor was honoring him a bit more than he was honoring her. And that ended Dick!

But wasn't he right? What earthly sense is there in the old theory that a man must be responsible for all the horrors of war and matrimony, and a woman responsible for none? Does a woman bestow any greater gift when she gives herself in marriage than a man? No, she doesn't. But I would advise you to take a bodyguard with you if you start to tell that to any of 'em!

Dear Geraldine:
Let me say something in regards to the young lady trying to overcome her love for a married man. Let her use one part of human sympathy and one part of common sense.

Strip the pink chiffon off your silly dreams. Look at the man as he really is—not a hero of romance, but a miserable, contemptible, weakling who is willing to sacrifice the happiness of two women, his wife and the girl who loves him.

He cannot stand up and do his duty by his family when he is tempted by another woman, he has so little nobility of soul that he will let himself be used and think straight.

Think of him as doing the meanest thing on earth, taking advantage of his relationship to win you when he could give nothing when he is wronging you to do the very thing he would shoot his wife for or would shoot another man if he made love to his wife.

Think of him with a yellow streak a yard wide, instead of a high character, and you will see that then apply common sense with your own case. Don't say you will be an exception. There are none!

Ask yourself what is the outcome of all this. Is he a failure? Is he a liar who has lost her charm he will be the same to you when you lose yours.

Go down upon the streets and ask the painted women where that sort of love leads to, for many of these were also in love with married men and wasted their love on a fool's romance.

Jerry, I am for you in everything but this—I think you are very wrong to uphold a wrong. FAIR PLAY.

Geraldine's Reply
I do not know to which "young lady" you refer with married man, you refer, "Fair Play," nor what I have "upheld" that you object to.

There are many young women writing to this column who are in love with married men, and I advise each case according to its merits and to the evidence offered. Also, I have never consciously upheld anything but decency and justice.

But I'll tell you one thing with utter candor—I DON'T UPHOLD YOUR LETTER.

I don't like a single word of it. There isn't the slightest sign of a sound understanding of human nature, and I have no common sense in the whole episode.

You lump all women into one class of worthy but abused humans, and all unhappy married men into the one class of yellow dogs. Men are only dissatisfied with their marriages on one score—according to you. They weary of a woman's charm.

I never heard of anything sillier and I'm going to fight that viewpoint with all my power, not because it is a silly notion, but because it is, unfortunately, the view held by most unhappy wives and is largely contributory to their unhappiness.

IF YOUNG WOMEN WERE TAUGHT THAT THEY MUST WORK FOR AND DESERVE LOVE, AND MUST MAKE OF THEIR MARRIAGES A PROFESSION TO WHICH THEY CONSECRATE BOTH BRAINS AND HEARTS, YOU WOULD HEAR LESS ABOUT "WOMEN'S HUSBANDS."

There are men who are "wanton scoundrels," I admit. There are men to whom the marriage covenant is merely "a scrap of paper."

But I firmly believe that for every such scoundrel there are thousands of men who would make splendid husbands if they had decent, intelligent co-operation at home.

The trouble is that the average young thing isn't taught anything about decent intelligent co-operation. She is taught that the only bond which will hold a man is CFARM.

On Jove—Mercury—Saturn—Pluto and Mars, how do wish I could climb to the top of the TRIBUNE clock and give "charm" the cussing out it truly deserves.

But if I did, the clock would melt! And then, when he grows because the blueprints are burnt and the bank account overdrawn, he tries a new kind of make-up, and if that doesn't

History of Methodism in Oakland Is Told by Pastor

By REV. E. R. DILLE, Pastor Emeritus First M. E. Church

[This is the first of a series of articles written by Rev. E. R. Dille, tracing the history of the various denominations in the East-bay region.]

The First Methodist church in Oakland was organized with fourteen members in 1861 by Rev. C. V. Anthony, and its first public services were held in the old Agricultural Pavilion, on Broadway, between Fourth and Fifth streets. The next spring, Rev. Dr. Wadsworth, pastor of the Presbyterian church, offered the use of the edifice on Broadway. Year Thirtieth, which generous offer was gratefully accepted. The Sunday school was held in the sitting room of William's Temperance hotel on Third street.

IN 1862, while Rev. C. V. Anthony was pastor, he raised $200 for which a lot was purchased on the corner of Sixth and Washington streets, and the historic "Carpenter schoolhouse" for which Oakland has been famous, was built. This building was bought, removed to the lot and fitted up at a total cost of $25,000. It was dedicated by Rev. M. C. Briggs, December 14, 1862.

The next year a new lot was purchased on the corner of Ninth and Washington for $1000, and a frame of 200, the whole property costing $7500. This church was dedicated by Bishop Clark in 1864.

GROWTH OF OAKLAND. Oakland was now taking on a rapid growth, the completion of the local railroad making it a residence suburb of San Francisco. In 1875, during Dr. Anthony's second pastorate, the church erected a residence building of 200, the whole property costing $7500. This church was dedicated by Bishop Clark in 1864.

THE CHURCH OF THE COMRADES. The church of the Comrades, a magnificent Cathedral Memorial to the Universalist boys who fell in the World War will be erected in Washington. Ninety-five thousand dollars of the fund was pledged at the Convention.

The January meeting of the General Board will confirm a proposition whereby the First Universalist Church of Oakland will receive $12,000 if a similar amount is raised by the local society. This local amount will be secured partly pledged made by interested friends in other parts of the country.

NEW ERA DAWNS

Thanks to the enterprise and consecration of their people, and to the timely aid rendered by the City Church extension society and by the Century and the co-operation of First Church, a new era has dawned upon our younger churches and they are better equipped, better housed, better manned and better supported than ever before.

At this sixtieth anniversary a few figures will show that Methodism has kept pace with the remarkable growth of this city of homes, schools and churches. In 1861 we had one organization with fourteen members, no church property and the pastor received $615 salary.

In 1921 we have churches, 732 members, 3030 in Sunday schools, church property valued at $433,200. We raised for denominational benevolences last year $36,138, for ministerial support $25,560.

THE CENSUS OF 1860 gave Oakland a population of 2449; that of 1870, 10,500 and at that rate of growth the population of 1891 was 20,000. From this it appears that while our city multiplied 113 times in 30 years, the membership of the Methodist Episcopal church has multiplied 122 times.

The writer first knew the First Church here in 1873, only five survivors who were members here then. Among them were Mrs. George Miller and David E. Burrows. Among leading laymen of those early days, Judge Noble Hamilton, Dr. J. S. Adams, O. J. Backus, Baxter Booth, M. Huntington, J. S. and L. G. Burpee, B. Finch, E. S. Finch, C. M. Fulton, Elsie Higgins, M. S. Hurd, C. H. Holt, M. T. Holcomb, G. S. Keys, E. W. Player, O. S. Orick, W. H. Rouse, O. B. Smith and many others who may be named. Mention should be made of the Associate Pastors who served this church, and in some cases achieved distinction in other fields. Rev. Paul Spencer has been for eleven years, pastor of the church of the Strangers, New York City; Willie M. Martin, D. D., pastor of the Hollywood church, Los Angeles, one of the strongest churches on the coast, and Rev. C. C. Poole, now pastor of the American Church in London, successor to the late Rev. J. A. Thompson, the most conspicuous "Disaster" pupil in London, with the possible exception of the City Temple.

Mention should also be made of the brilliant pastorate (1892-1897) of Dr. Alfred Kummer, who died in Oakland, and his successor, Dr. J. A. Thompson, who is just beginning the sixth year of a most successful ministry here.

have been few and far between, largely because the provocation has been scarce. David Warfield, by his inimitable acting, has given vitality to plays which otherwise would be stored away in the closet of cherished memories. But great drama, the poetry essential to drama the immortal theme, has not been created in America.

It would be interesting to hear Mr. Sothern's opinion on the reason for the paucity of strong American plays. Perhaps he would say that it is due from the variable emotionalism of the people and the frailty of poets and dramatists to resist the temptation to try to seize the emotionalism of the hour. And perhaps he would have the courage—we are sure he would—to charge a large share of responsibility to producers who insist upon serving the popular taste of the hour with the minimum of expense.

Nearly every play is written and all are produced with an eye on box office receipts, of a quick turnover and large profits. Consequently they miss entirely the goal of permanency, or preserving "strength."

Mr. Sothern's lament probably will be heard until a strong American play is the accident of some dramatist and producer trying to construct a good drawing card.

A FREEHOLDERS' REPUTATION

Quite naturally and not altogether unexpectedly one of the members of the freeholders committee that drafted the proposed charter to be voted on at the election on November 13 has publicly announced his opposition to the document he was induced to sign and is urging the people of Alameda county to defeat it. He is Mr. Lewis A. Hicks of Berkeley.

It is timely to record, also in this connection, that Mayor Bartlett of Berkeley, who stood in with the original agitators of the proposed charter, has longer refused to give his countenance to support of the scheme.

Mr. Hicks has the forthrightness and courage, after full examination, to repudiate the charter. He finds that it means county division. He finds that under no circumstances can it benefit the city he represented, or any other section of the county, if adopted. THE TRIBUNE believes these to be the motives of Mr. Hicks and gives him full credit for them.

But it cannot ignore the fact that his stand against the charter fits snugly into the statement of the Mayor of Berkeley, at the time the election of a freeholders committee was pending, that the situation was resolving itself favorably for the hopes of certain Berkeley citizens; and also with THE TRIBUNE's warning that the proposed charter plan would serve exactly the long standing scheme of certain citizens of Berkeley to set up a separate city and county.

The charter having been submitted, and the law providing that in the event only Oakland approves the charter and decrees separation from the remainder of the county, Berkeley can set up her separate city and county, we find the Berkeley freeholder abandoning the charter.

We come back, then, to the solemn warning of THE TRIBUNE that the whole movement was a scheme of major county division, under which certain self-seeking interests in Oakland had joined with the separatists of Berkeley to carry out the plot of county division.

The only way to defeat this unutterably vicious and incalculably harmful undertaking is for Oakland to vote down the new charter scheme at the first opportunity on November 13.

There is a rule against jewelry in Sing Sing penitentiary and the other day keepers filed a wedding ring off the finger of a prisoner who had been sent up for bigamy. If the mutilated ring will be given back at the expiration of the man's sentence it may still possess value as a souvenir of warning.

One actuary of an insurance company declares that in fifty years the average age of man has gone up ten years and recalls that in Massachusetts recently a man died at the age of 165 years. Obviously there should be a reduction in the cost of life insurance.

EDUCATION—FOR WHAT?

Enrollments in American colleges were greater this year than ever before. The facilities of our schools are so taxed that new limits are being set up. Almost a stampede for education, the casual observer may assume.

But these young men and women who hammer so numerously at the doors of learning do not seek precisely what the student of a generation ago received. A great proportion of them are in quest of technical and professional diplomas. These are not much concerned with "broadening their minds." They are, in a very real sense of the term, there for business.

There can be no objection to intensive training for specialized pursuits. We need skilled doctors and lawyers and engineers. But the question arises whether exclusive study in one's chosen work is, after all, what we mean by education. President Angell of Yale thinks not. In an address delivered at McGill University he urged that we should "not fail to take advantage of the lesson the Germans taught us" and that we must "distinguish between education which is merely technical" and the kind that is called cultural.

Henry Adams complained of the teaching current in the colleges in his youth on the ground that it inadequately prepared one to understand the modern world. He wanted an education designed to fit the pupil intellectually for a changing environment. His brother, Brooks Adams, went so far as to predict that specialization would go on until there were none educated in that broader direction necessary for administering the affairs of the increasingly complicated society. We are destined, he thought, to know much about machines but little about man.

Many a college today is in a hurry to get on in the world, not to indulge in the criticisms of civilization that to Henry Adams, were education. He wants to pocket his diploma and bid study goodbye. He hasn't much time for it.—New York Sun.

NOTES and COMMENT

The resignation of Chief Justice Angelotti was foreshadowed. This makes three resignations from California's highest legal tribunal within quite recent times, and for the same reason. Those relinquishing such high and honorable positions—and it necessarily or desirably to make more money.

Colonel Harvey has been speaking again and has advised a British audience that a triple alliance of England, France and the United States is impossible. What is possible, however, is that the Colonel has again laid himself open to criticism by declaring governmental policies. What he says may be true without there being diplomatic propriety in his saying it.

The looming of the mail continues. The most recent instance at Los Angeles—most spectacular—a mail truck was loaded and the driver handcuffed to a wheel of the vehicle. It is now seen that a guard with a gun would have added to the effectiveness of the equipment, and if there were considerable values in the sack it would seem to have been possible to see it before instead of after.

The suit against the man Riker who poses as a condor for the fictitious Christian Divine Way, should be illuminating to those persons who are beguiled by these new routes to heaven. The suit has been instituted by a man who claims that Riker absorbed his farm in the scheme that he has for showing the divine way. Incidentally, the San Francisco grand jury has indicted him, which could be accepted as a further illuminating disclosure in the matter.

Editor Leake of the Woodland Democrat continues unconvinced. "For more than eight months the Republicans have been in control of every department of the government and yet no decisive action has been taken in the matter of reforming the tax laws. A Republican congress has signally failed to redeem its promises."

The elimination of another Arbuckle witness appears to have been achieved. The public is more or less prepared to find that the case has disintegrated till the prospect of any thorough trial is not very bright. But there is a big film question behind it all that may not be so easily managed.

That Americans going abroad no longer have to prove that they have paid their income tax is one of the irritating requirements resulting from the war that has been abated. It isn't a great matter, perhaps, but any movement back toward that time when Americans could take a step without having to reckon with a Federal law or rule is welcome.

The Medford Mail-Tribune is reminded that autumn is here. "This is the season of the year when turkeys that lived all summer on grasshoppers are advertised as fowls that subsisted entirely on chestnuts and pure cream for the Thanksgiving trade."

There will be no knock-over surprise that Senator Reed backs up Senator Watson in the charges that United States soldiers have been hanged in France. Indeed, it may be a surprise that he did not spring the sensation himself if he had knowledge of it, or even merely guessed at it. Anyhow, it is a ruction to his liking, and it may be expected that he will figure raucously in whatever proceedings ensue.

An interesting educational item from Walla Walla is the account of the discovery by the principal of the high school of a porcupine under his desk. This is a variant of the old student trick of hiding a cow in the belfry, but it is somewhat belated and it is not absolutely intellectual.

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS

A man married in Los Angeles two years ago has been disclosed a fugitive mail robber. The marriage was performed at the home of a minister and the minister's family were the witnesses. Here we have a typical case of the irresponsibility of many ministers in performing marriage ceremonies. Neither the minister nor any of his family knew either the bride or groom.—Atascadero News.

Hansen & Orloff, local dairymen, are receiving large shipments of dried beet pulp from the American Sugar Company at a handsome profit. Several carloads of this stock feed will be used. More than 600 cows are milked daily at the various dairies of Hansen & Orloff near town, and the milk is shipped to the bay cities.—Pleasanton Times.

For every four persons in Kern county there is one automobile. Or, to be more accurate, for every 3.8 persons there is one automobile. Which makes the largest percentage of cars, compared to population, of any county in California. And the figures do not include trucks or motorcycles.—Bakersfield Californian.

California doesn't always pad the figures sent out from the State. That Sacramento cyclone reported at first to have wrought $150,000 damages was promptly cut back to $17,000 the next day. Other bulletins will greatly reduce this figure.—Red Bluff News.

An old-time tourist guide, printed in 1874, is brought to light by M. E. Hill, Southern Pacific brakeman. Here's one of its hints to travelers: "Before starting out provide yourself with at least one-third more money than your most liberal estimate would lead you to require. That is, if you are a traveler, you will have to pay for it."—Modesto News.

MACAO.

CIDADE DA NOME DE DEOS: NAO HA OUTRA MAIS LEAL, Oct. 23.—Telegraph editors are reasonably shock-proof, yet a date like the above might arouse curiosity, if not consternation when the bill for cable tolls rolled around. Yet it would be accurate enough, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. For that is the corporate name of the Monte Carlo of the Orient, where despatches, more modernly dated, "Macao," tell how the Southern Chinese government is trying to break up opium smuggling and church lotteries in this Portuguese city. Macao's longer name means, City of the Name of God, most loyal of the colonies.

All the controversies raging around the baker's dozen of foreign holdings on China's coast, modest Macao has remained immune until the Canton regime recently endeavored to "clean-up" this first European conquest in China, perhaps with the added political motive of thereby insuring Portuguese recognition of the Sun Yat-sen regime, the bulletin continues.

"Not only is Macao the site of the first European claim staked out on Cathay's coast, but it has cultural ties with Europe closer than the political relationships of controverted areas to the north. It contains the oldest ruin in China that is associated with Europe, and the tamarind and banyan shade the gardens where the Portuguese Chaucer, Camoens, composed half of 'The Lusitana,' one of the half-dozen of the world's great epics.

"Inevitably, too, one associates the location of Macao, on a small three-mile peninsula jutting from an island in the delta of the Canton River, below Hongkong, with that colony of Portuguese-Americans on the very tip of Cape Cod, made famous by Joseph Lincoln. In Macao, as in Provincetown, and at Goa, on the west coast of India, it seems as if the Portuguese had left the very edge of Europe and all but missed landing on the headlands of other continents. But if history did not record the lasting debt that Europe owes to Portugal for reaching out to every corner of the globe, Camoens, here at Macao, would have left in his immortal epic a noble monument to Vasco da Gama and other heroes of Lusitanian caravels.

"Once in Macao, the traveler may remain to contemplate an out-of-the-way shrine of European history. But that is not why most folk board the daily boat from Hongkong to go there. It is a summer resort for the Cantonese, because of its exposure to the cooling monsoons in mid-summer. Opium smugglers and gamblers, in recent years, have loomed large in the Chinese traffic also had headquarters here. Within a century its water may have warranted the characterization of one traveler, who called them 'the most dangerous waters of the world from a police standpoint,' and added 'a river-trip is spiced with the risk of piracy attack.'

"Present-day Macao is not marred for the casual traveler by either its flair for fan-tan or its opulent opium industry. The latter is shipped away to wreck its havoc; the former brings the bizarre and the adventurous from an airplane the mile-wide tongue of land between the two rocky hills that mark its boundaries is spotted with brilliant colors, radiating from the tile roofs of its blue, green, red and yellow houses.

"He who lands on a steamer is captivated by the blend of Portuguese and Chinese people, by palace CARUSO STOPPED THE MUSIC. Enrico Caruso said at a dinner in New York: "In my youth in Naples, I once took part in some amateur theatricals at the Bertolini Palace hotel—in the fine, large hotel salon, you know, with its outlook over the bay and islands.

"The hotel orchestra, a very good one, had a great deal to do in our drama. At one point it had to play a very lovely selection, in the midst of which I was to rush in, hold up my hand and say in a shocked, heart-broken tone:

"Stop the music! The queen is dead."

"Well, the evening of our performance the orchestra outdid itself. I never heard it play more passionately, more beautifully. But as for me, I was very nervous, and when I rushed in and held up my hand the words I shouted in my confusion were:

Having shopped and slumbered, he finally will be led to catch the deeper romance of the city in the grove where other poets have carved lines of praise to the one-eyed soldier poet who wrote the glory of farthest west Europe on an island of nearly farthest east China, and among many adventures besides, was shipwrecked on his way to Lisbon and even more distressing some live or the captain of his boat."

About YOUR HEALTH

Why One Man's Food Really Is Another's Poison
By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Commissioner of Health, New York City.

We have so many cells and fibers, so many different tissues, that it is not strange, perhaps, that a different disease may manifest itself in almost endless ways. This is particularly true of the effect produced by food poisoning.

A given poison may affect the nervous system of one person, the muscles and joints of another, the digestive system or the skin of a third.

The proteid substances are usually the offenders, for instance tainted or spoiled meat of any sort, fish, pork, shell-fish and wild game. Overripe mushrooms are a frequent cause of such a disability.

It is not uncommon for a person to be susceptible to the effect of certain foods. One particular food may cause trouble whenever it is taken. Cream or eggs or oysters—indeed, almost any food may be the offending substance.

There seems to be a natural weakness, or what the scientists call an "idiosyncrasy" on the part of some persons. This is best expressed in the old saying:

"What is one man's food is another man's poison."

Experts in the various diseases in which an eruption of the skin is one of the symptoms are frequently puzzled to decide exactly what the trouble is. Since typhus fever has been threatening the country, it has required careful study to determine whether the eruptions found on the skin of certain patients were due to typhus or to food poisoning. This may make you wonder, but nevertheless it has been a not infrequent experience.

Usually the skin symptoms appear very soon after the doubtful food is eaten. No particular form of eruption is met. It may take the form of general redness of the skin, of hives, of great swollen areas, of tender spots or of great itching.

There may be nausea, vomiting, fever, convulsions, diarrhoea, twitching of the muscles and even unconsciousness.

Similar general and skin symptoms may be caused as a result of so-called food intoxication, or in the course of certain diseases like diabetes.

Some drugs cause skin eruptions and symptoms not unlike food poisoning. The iodides and bromides, quinine, some of the coal tar products, chloral, arsenic and other drugs taken for their medicinal effects may produce these symptoms.

In the treatment of the skin symptoms due to food poisoning, it is important to empty the stomach and bowels. Warm salt or soda solution will cause vomiting. Salts or some other laxative will clear the intestinal tract. An enema will be useful.

The patient should be put on a restricted diet for a few days. Lots of water, vichy and milk should be taken.

If there is much itching of the skin, soda solution may be freely employed. A sprig of soda solution is hypodermic of soda, two cupsful dissolved in enough water to cover the body—about one-third of a tubful.

Study should be directed toward discovering the exact article of food responsible for the trouble. Then it should be permanently eliminated from the diet.

HARMFUL LADIES EMERGE. Never since Mahomet married his old tartar of an employer have the women of the harem been as much in the public eye as they are in Egypt today.

Shopping, walking, motoring and driving (in open cars and carriages) and at the races they are as much in evidence as their unveiled sisters.

The veil of today is for the pretty ones as flimsy as the excuse on which it is discarded. Thinnest tulle or georgette suffices. More conservative women still wear heavy opaque silk or serge de chine; but they have heard it whispered that these may perhaps a year or two on the shady side of 25, the age beyond which the Egyptian beauty tends to overripeness.

Islamic custom and tradition which enjoin the veiling of the face is silent on the subject of the feet and ankles.

Humble Moslem women still trail their voluminous wrappings in the dust, but the harem lady displays smart shoes and stockings when she goes abroad.

I was at a concert the other day with a bevy of them, all daughters of noble Egyptian houses. Each one changed her seat at least ten times. They were overpoweringly scented. Their chatter drowned the soft notes and filled in all the singers' dramatic pauses.

In the amount and the kind of jewelry they were they showed how little they are removed in matters of taste from the Bedouin bride, such as I have seen in the jewellers' bazaar of Damascus with fifty English sovereigns strung along their tattooed foreheads like a pop-pony's browband.

In diet they are still flappers. Pastry cooks and confectioners make their fortunes in Egypt. In literature they have not advanced beyond the flimsiest French novels. In music they are still in the grip of "Carmen" and "L'Espresso." Two in the last year or two they have not hesitated to plunge straight from the harem into politics.

Few more pathetic sights could be imagined than that of a middle aged and conservative Egyptian politician interviewing a deputation of Egyptian "suffragettes." They call themselves "The Future Mothers of Egypt," though a cynical politician friend of mine who has suffered from their intentions thought that from the deputation that waited him were too young to be thinking of such things—and the other half would have to hurry up.—Arkansas Times.

ST. MARY'S WILL HAVE TO BE IN FORM TO DEFEAT THE OLYMPICS

Local Collegians and Winged 'O' Teams Will Battle at Ewing Field, S. F., Tomorrow.

By DOUG MONTIEL

One of the best of the "big little games" of the year will be played tomorrow afternoon on Ewing field in San Francisco when the St. Mary's eleven clashes with the Olympic Club warriors of Coach Babe Bollingsberry in what promises to be a contest similar to the U. C. U. S. C. game of today, only on a smaller scale. Both St. Mary's and the Olympic Club have been eliminated from any championship rights on the coast or the state but they still have the right to fight it out for the championship of their two respective organizations, and as such it will be well worth the trip across the pond. Coach Madigan has been giving his boys a hard week of work and after a vacation of ten days the boys buckled down to work and have been performing like champions behind the closed gates at St. Mary's.

The Olympic club has not been idle, but the Winged G's are severely handicapped when it comes to the matter of training. Early in the season, the Winged G's players were hustled out to the park for a work-

Both Teams Strong;

Both the Olympic club and St. Mary's have been handicapped by injuries to star players in the past few weeks. But these crippled players have returned to the line-up and both sides of the bay are claiming the victory. Since the game is played on a 100-foot field, much to be said on both sides and it is one game that refuses to be doped in advance. St. Mary's is the only college team, and possessing a number of the region's best players.

Nine men are battling better than 300.

The two are a hard and regular tackle beribs on the Red and Blue teams. Nelson, a former St. John's player, is a former St. John's player. The return to the line-up of Cliff Clark, Lane, the speedy Hawaiian and, has been a surprise. Clark, who was Saint's left flank with Mirodole holds the position of a fullback. Crawford Moved to Center for Olympians

While the Olympic Club has been warring and coming to blows with the city, the club has been busy that they had at the beginning of the season, and the club has been busy so many have been prone to think, that the club has been busy.

The club has been busy with the flame hark in the game and backfield will be 100 per cent stronger than last year.

The playing of Andrews in left field and Putschauer in right for the first time in the hardware park was the means of an interesting change in the lineup of the Washington team. Andrews, covering the world of territory, ambling six drives in the game, had been the mainstay of the team for a long time. He was a good for singles or doubles but a poor runner. He had been in that left field position, in right, several times before. Putschauer, in right, surely never came in the seventh inning when he was needed.

Player Seen in Years. With Williams and Needles returned to the Chicago Bulls, the Bulls coach has ceased to worry about offensive rebounding. Williams, who has been told to start at fullback, for the former captain of Nebraska is the best offensive rebounder in the league. He is an excellent drop kicker, fast, a good blocker, and a hard worker. Williams is a broken field. Jimmy Needles and Williams with hold down the two back positions. Williams is expected to be a key player for the Coast this year and Andy Smith gave him credit for having stopped the Bruins from winning the title in the Olympic Club-California game, then any other two men on the team, and he is expected to be a key player. Smith will start at quarterback or either Holmberg or Gonzalez. The new star from Gonzaga is Andy Smith. Hatch played his first game in the Coast game.

The Merchants will most likely start Klato to the mound tomorrow in an effort to stop the fastidious Athletics. The Athletics will start the pitcher of the Class B team, and with Harry Coffey back at the Athletics, the Athletics will have a winning streak of the Athletics.

ACCUSED BROKER SUSPECTED OF
L. A. CHECK FRAUDRobert L. Bradford Charged
With $14,000 Bond Swindle in South; Bail Refused.

Robert L. Bradford, graduate of the University of California, prominent clubman and broker of San Francisco, was arraigned this morning before Police Judge Mortimer Smith under the name of S. S. Sanders on a charge of passing worthless checks. The date of the preliminary examination was set for November 17.

Bradford's attorney, Clarence E. Wilson, made a motion for a reduction in the bail of the defendant, which has been set at $20,000. His appeal was denied by Judge Smith at the request of Captain of Inspectors Richard McSorley, who wants the bail kept at that figure until the authorities from Los Angeles see if the man is wanted in that city.

Judge Smith said, "If the man is not wanted in Los Angeles or any other city for similar deals I will consider reducing the bail."

Captain McSorley received a telegram this morning from Sheriff W. I. Traeger of Los Angeles in which it stated that Bradford had been identified as C. E. Fisher, who is wanted there in connection with a $14,000 Liberty Bond swindle. The sheriff also stated that a man would arrive here today that thought he could identify Bradford as the man wanted in the southern city.

A pretty young woman about 18 years old pleaded with Captain McSorley to be granted permission to go to the city prison to visit Bradford, whom she claimed was her husband. She told McSorley that she had married Bradford two weeks ago in Connecticut. She refused to tell her maiden name and in what town she was married.

Bradford was arrested Wednesday when he attempted to purchase $10,000 worth of Liberty bonds from the Central National Bank with a check on a bank in which he did not have sufficient funds to cover it.

The charge on which he was arraigned this morning was for a check given by H. Michaels, clerk for the William Carter Company, for the purchase of $10,000 worth of Liberty bonds in April of this year. The warrant was sworn to by Michaels at the time of the alleged swindle.

Water Distribution,
Subject of Lecture

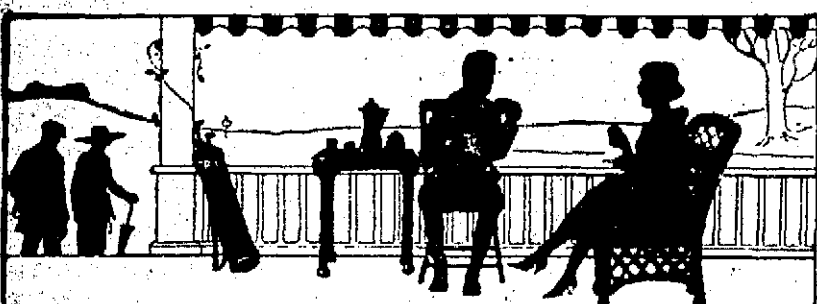

"The Collection, Storage, Purification and Distribution of a Domestic Water Supply" was the topic of a lecture by Charles E. Thatcher, assistant general manager of the East Bay Water company yesterday before the general science classes of the 5A and 5B grades of the Garfield school, Twenty-third avenue and East Sixteenth street.

Thatcher's lecture on "water" was one of the series arranged by Miss Eliza Shattell, teacher in charge of the classes. The speakers who will lecture to the general science classes will be officials of public service corporations and large Eastbay manufacturing plants who will give the students an insight into the difficulties encountered in rendering service to the public. All of the lectures will be illustrated with photographs showing the working systems of the various enterprises brought to the attention of the students.

PIN BOY'S TOES BROKEN.

ALAMEDA, Nov. 5.—Milton Schulte, 1545 Everett street, is a pin boy in a local bowling alley. Last night he failed to move fast enough when one of the bowlers made a strike. The flying pins scattered around him like a burst of shrapnel. Several of the heavy pins landed upon his toes, breaking them. He was taken to the Emergency hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Sanders.
